

SAWMILL / REMAN DRY-END SUPERINTENDENT – ARIZONA, US

A US based producer of commodity lumber and engineered wood products has an immediate opportunity for an experienced Dry-End Superintendent at a new facility located near Flagstaff, Arizona.

Northern Arizona has the largest Ponderosa Pine forests in the world. The company implements sustainable forestry practices for a healthier ecosystem which reduces the risks of catastrophic wildfires in dry climate conditions.

With the largest high-capacity sawmill and remanufacturing operations using state-of-the-art equipment, the company produces commodity lumber grades/sizes (1"x4" through 1"x12" / 6' to 16') and engineered wood products including edge-glued and finger-jointed boards and pattern stock.

The Dry-End Superintendent will oversee and manage the day-to-day activities of the Planer Mill and Engineered Wood Products plant. The position requires an in-depth understanding of lumber finishing including value-added (remanufacturing) production; safety protocols; equipment training; and team leadership. Primary candidate qualifications:

- Successful career history in lumber finishing supervision including experience lumber remanufacturing and/or engineered wood products production
- Knowledge and application of safety regulations and best practices in an industrial setting
- Competent organizational, communication and problem-solving skills
- Ability to work collaboratively with cross-function teams including sales / marketing

Flagstaff, population 140,000, is considered to be one of the best residential locations in the nation. Reasonable housing costs; excellent services and educational facilities including university; close proximity to numerous natural wonders including the Grand Canyon; all provide the very best lifestyle. Phoenix is 140 miles; Las Vegas, NV is 250 miles on major highways.
